When Napoleon escaped from Elba, Macdonald refused to listen to his allurements. Louis XVIII. appreciated his services, making peer of the realm and promoting him from one post of honor to another. Thereafter his career was one of uninterrupted prosperity.; glorious past was over. His military talents were no longer brought into requisition. last victory which opened to the wreck of the French army the road to France. In 1814 the final struggle began. Thrice did Macdonald arrest the march of the Allies to Paris, and thrice give the emperor time to arrive and assist the capital. But human valor could no further go. The enormous armies of the coalition could not be put to flight by the handful left to Napoleon and his cause. At last Paris capitulated. Macdonald was chosen ambassador to the victors. He knew well the temper of his master, he recognized the greatness of his mission. When some spoke of immunity for Napoleon, Macdonald declared, in the name of the emperor and by his orders, that he came to make terms for France, and not for any individual. The abdication of Napoleon and his retirement to Elba followed. Macdonald believing all was lost, took the oath of allegiance to Louis XVIII. More than that, he kept it. When Napoleon escaped from Elba Macdonald refused to listen to his allurements. Even when the soldiers whom he had been appointed to lead against the invader deserted him at the first...
