Not illustrated. 1801 Excerpt: . . . not only friendship but obedience; assuring me that in proof of the latter they had sent out parties to arrest such of the mountaineers as would be found carrying wine and gunpowder to the French camp, and placing eighty prisoners of this description at my disposal. I had thus the satisfaction to find Buonapartes career farther northward effectually stopped, by a warlike people inhabiting an impenetrable country. General Klebers division had been sent eastward towards the fords of the Jordan, to oppose the Damascus army; it was recalled from thence to take its turn in the daily efforts to mount the breach at Acre, in which every other division in succession had failed, with the loss of their bravest men, and above threefourths of their officers. It seems much was hoped from this division, as it had by its firmness, and the steady front it opposed in the form of a hollow square, kept upwards of 10, 000 men in check during a whole day in the plain between Nazareth and Mount Tabor, till Buonaparte came with his horse artillery and extricated these troops, dispersing the multitude of irregular cavalry, by which they were completely surrounded. The Turkish Chifflick regiment having been censured for the ill success of their sally, and their unsteadiness in the attack of the garden, made a fresh sally the next night, Soliman Aga the lieutenantcolonel, being determined to retrieve the honour of the regiment by the punctual execution of the orders...
